WHEAT MARKET OPENED HIGHER.

The strong cables offset the fine weather news from the Southwest to-day, and the local wheat market ac-cordingly opened higher. At Liverpool ordingly opened higher. At Liverpool futures were up 1-4 to 3-8d, causing more or less activity among shorts, which was accelerated by a further advance in corn. The latter was also a matter of shorts to a great extent, and amounted to 1-2 at Chicago.

Opanions regarding weekly crop report due at noon were mixed, but on the whole k was believed that the statement would be bearish, as the weather has improved very much of late, especially in the lower winter wheat sections.

A $30,000,000 BOY IS YOUNG ZIEGLER

William Ziegler, the Late Millionaire, Makes His Fourteen-Year-Old Namesake the Richest Boy in the World.

A boy of fourteen, pale, rather delicate, studious in his habits, whose ambitions run along the lines of heroid adventure, in spite of the frafity of his physique, has suddenly become the richest boy of his years in the world. Perhaps in all the world there isn't and a physician is in constant attendance on him. He is absolutely indifferent him that is coming to young William Ziegler, born Brandt, but adopted years ago by William Ziegler, the millionait half brether of William Ziegler. His half, but the chief beneficiary under his will.

The lad is a son of George Brandt, a half brether of William Ziegler. His mother died when he was a buby, leaving a large family of children. William Ziegler offered to assist his half-brother to the extent of taking one of his boys off his hands, and chose the young her of day. He legally adopted him, and for many years now he and the boy have been boon companions, scarcely happy when not together.

Interested in Arctic Exploration.

The late William Ziegler spent many thousands of dollars in geographical exploration. He put his millions at the service of those hardy men who have striven over and over again to reach the North Pole. He stood ready to equip new expeditions as long as the men to lead them came forward, and if one of his men could have reached the Pole first it would have completely rounded out a very busy and useful In Ignorance of His Adoption.
